When there are kind people, there'll be no trouble.
The musical-artistic activity: learning songs together, reading fiction, learning poems. And also holidays in which children of different ages took part were held: "the Day of Knowledge", "Autumn Holiday", "Olympic Games", "St. Valentine's Day", "Our Dads".

Work with parents: in the parent's corner we put in visual information about the problems of communication of different aged children and the ways to overcome them; the parent's meeting on the theme "Peculiarities of psychological development of 3-4 year-old, 4-5-year-old children" was held.

In September 2013 3-year-old children were enlisted in a middle group for a short day. The relationship among children were tense from the beginning. The elder children did not treat them equal. This became apparent when the children played (they didn't give them toys, pushed them). All the time the elder children complained to the teacher that younger ones did not understand them, couldn't play, dress up, keep the pencil right. And they asked such questions: "Why are they like this?", "We are tired of them, when would they leave?".

The teachers watched this situations and noted a real problem in the relationship among children. As a result this project was worked out.

Friends have all in common, and friendship is an equality

The tasks are:

- to teach children how to communicate and make friends with everybody but not only with the one of the same age;
- to educate a kind relationship to each other and to educate the skill of making others happy;
- to cause the wish to take care of the younger children, to help them and be an example.

The duration of the project is one year.

31 children at the age of 3-5 years, teachers and parents took part in the project.

The aim of the project "Friends have all in common, and friendship is an equality" is to eliminate the relationship inequality among elder and younger children in a different aged group.
